Expected Outcomes:

- Identification and understanding of student's unique strengths and abilities as they relate to the way they think, accomplish things, communicate, and relate to others and how results should be used/considered in major/career exploration and design.
- Discovery of all options/paths open to explore. Identification of potential occupations and majors, values, work and learning style, and activities based on student's interests. Results can reveal occupations they've never thought of that align with who they are, confirm a path they've already identified that in fact aligns with who they are, or often both.
- Review of resource for student to use to explore suggested and related occupations and get in depth information for further consideration of majors and career path exploration (O*NET® website – free and linked to the SII report)
- Self-Awareness. Clients gain the needed confidence to make the best choices for their education and career paths based upon what interests and motivates them, as well as gaining the language to articulate who they are and what makes them unique.
- Life-long benefits. By learning to lean into and develop their strengths, clients will be better able to be their own best advocate, better understand their personal relationships, and thrive in all environments both personal and professional.
